Canary Islands: Islands rich in diversity

Tenerife ♦ Fuerteventura ♦ Gran Canaria ♦ Lanzarote

Saharan breezes and varied landscapes typify the Canary Islands. The seven islands that make up the group are part of Europe but lie close to the Atlantic coast of Africa, giving them a perfect year-round climate.

Fast facts

- Currency: Euro
- Voltage: 220V (round two-pin)
- Don't forget: With warm weather year-round the Canary Islands are ideal any time.

It's easy to lose yourself in one of the islands' vibrant resorts and long stretches of beach that dip into the warm sea. But these islands have much more to offer than just sun, sea and sand.

The mountainous interiors of Tenerife and Gran Canaria make for lush rainforest walks and the opportunity to reach some of Europe's heady heights along the foothills of the world's third largest, though dormant, volcano Lanzarote too has a volcanic heart and its mineral rich soil hosts an abundance of flora and fauna.

All the islands are fringed by wonderful sandy stretches, but Fuerteventura is a beach-lover's dream.

Added to this the Canary Islands are famed for activities you wouldn't expect to find in Europe. They're a perfect place to see stars – the slopes of Tenerife's Mount Teide is one of the best locations in the world for stargazing – and are home to the finest dive sites in Europe.

Middle East

The wonders of Arabia have enthralled travellers for centuries and the fascination continues across these almost mystical lands.

The United Arab Emirates offer beaches, upmarket shopping and world-class restaurants – but there is also something more. The Emirates have an intoxicating traditional culture and wonderfully contrasting landscapes, from awe-inspiring dunes to rich oases, precipitous rocky mountains to fertile plains, all embraced in a Middle Eastern welcome.

Today Dubai has transformed itself into one of the most elegant and vibrant destinations in the world. Alongside its traditional souks sits 21st century modernity with glittering shopping malls and the world's tallest skyscraper, the Burj Khalifa.

The Syrian capital Damascus is regarded as the oldest city in the world and has preserved much of its heritage making it a delight for history buffs.

Syria's neighbour Lebanon lies at the crossroads of Europe, Africa and the Middle East and with 200 kilometres of coastline and two mountain chains you can ski and sunbathe on the same day.

Jordan's archaeological treasures are many and Jerash, home to the ancient city of Petra, is one to behold.

Insider tips

- To visit Petra in Jordan is to understand why it is one of the new Seven Wonders of the World.
- Experience the thrill of dune driving among Dubai's great stretches of sand dunes.

...Dubai is for those who enjoy the finer things in life... world class shopping malls, 7 star hotels, year round sunshine and slightly over the top activities...skiing in the desert anyone!?
